We Can Help....

Employees who travel on business locally, nationally or internationally face unique personal safety risks. Under occupational health and safety law employers must take reasonable steps to ensure the personal safety of those travelling on company business.

Recent cases in the news media show how easily unexpected events can befall travelling employees. Whether it is an urgent medical situation, serious crime or an accidental injury, it is all-too-often the case that steps were not taken by the employer to anticipate the risk and plan an appropriate response.

At David Hyde and Associates we have the knowledge and experience to support organizations in addressing employee travel safety. Our team has developed Corporate Safe Travel Plans for major organizations and provided personal safety training to large populations of travellers.

Please call today to find out how we can help you in protecting travelling employees and meeting your duty of care requirements.

We Optimize Travel Safety....

David Hyde & Associates provides support to clients through all stages of travel security & safety planning:

Destination Threat Assessment

Understand the client's business and identify the threats present in the specific regions that employees travel to

Human Vulnerability Assessment

Assess the travelling population and quantify the risk of harm to employees based on destination threat levels

Travel Risk Assessment

Converge the destination & human assessment findings and establish the organization's overall travel risk profile

Risk Management Plan

Develop Travel Security Policies and a Corporate Safe Travel Plans that address the client's unique risk profile

Recent research by the Association of Corporate Travel Executives (ACTE) suggests that many employers are unprepared to deal with employee travel risks. As quoted in the ACTE report, "Many large organizations fret more over travel costs than traveller security, don't train employees travelling to high-risk locations and generally don't fulfil duty of care obligations".

In developing Safe Travel Plans we align with industry best practice and with travel guidance provided by the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade. Clients are therefore assured of a plan that is not only operationally sound, but also addresses legal and regulatory requirements resulting in an overall reduction in risk exposure.

Please call today to find out how the travel safety solutions offered by David Hyde and Associates can help to protect your travelling workforce.
